Bruce,

First of all, we are not planning on hosting Hot Import Nights this year. I have not been approached by anyone. I've conducted a business survey and received mixed results regarding that event (before my time.) I personally would prefer more wholesome events for the PBID.

Regarding the dumping, I am working on resolving that issue. In fact, I have a meeting tomorrow morning with another vendor. I really want to ensure that we have a clean and vibrant community and it will take me some time to work through this issue.

I appreciate your input and patience. Please let me know if you would like to set up a meeting in person to discuss your issues.

Best regards,

Hi Lorenz,

I am looking for email addresses for the members of PBID.

You may know me as the individual that took great offense to the Hot Import Nights event is trying to prevent it from returning to San Pedro.

My current project is trying to have Eric Eisenberg stop providing sufficient dumpster capacity in the alley next to the Cabrillo Hotel.

In spite of the documentation I have provided him, he doesn't seem to think there is a problem... except for people that haul large items and drop them next to his dumpster.

I recently have been trying to document the large item drops and so far, the only people I have found that doing this are employees of the Resource group. I have observed two instances and have been able to document one, and in both cases when I talked to the perpetrators they said the worker for Resource. Since they both had key access to the basement of the Cabrillo Hotel, I find that explanation very suspicious. It appears that Eric is using San Pedro Coast to do the thing that before is one of Eric's employees dumping off a couch (he then drove up the alley and dropped the mattress in another dumpster). I personally observed at least one of the rolls of carpet in the foreground of the same shot come out of the back of a pickup truck driven by another of Eric's employees. The other shots are indication of how this alley has looked over the last year due to a lack of dumpster capacity and furniture and mattress "tagalongs" again.

Mr. Ecker,

I wish it were that simple.

We have seen an increase in illegal dumping in the alley, the problem we have is that when we lock the dumpster people break the lock at night, not to mention the furniture that magically appears. But I don't need to tell you, your stuck looking at it as are we. Our plan is to install cameras and signage to try and catch the dumpers, until then, we do have employees checking and cleaning the alley. The bar does pay a recycler to take away their bottles, under normal circumstances the can is more than adequate, so it is emptied three times a week. We want to get a handle on this as much as you do, it's not good for anyone.

Thank You,
Eric
